John Fiser Heads Campaign
To Be Waged in Phila.
For York Co. Man

IS BEST EQUIPPED MAN

Choice Decided Upon After Careful Survey Had Been Made of Prospects

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 11.—Samuel S. Lewis stands out as the best-equipped candidate in the field for the Republican nomination for Governor, according to John Fiser, who announces formation of a Lewis-for-Governor Committee, which will carry the fight of the York county entry into every ward in Philadelphia.

The announcement of Mr. Fiser followed a number of meetings of prominent business men who have agreed to serve on the committee which will swing into action within a few days when headquarters will be established in the central part of the city.

Mr. Fiser, who has been active in Republican politics for many years, said the business leaders with whom he is associated desire to get behind the Lewis movement after they had canvassed the field of prospects.

They concluded that by virtue of his intimate knowledge of State affairs, gained from his four years as Auditor General, and four more as State Treasurer, Lewis appears to be the logical choice of the party for successor to Governor Fisher.

Lewis has the indorsement of State organization leaders.

Alice Eimer Surprised In Honor of Birthday

Alice Eimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eimer, of Garden street, was pleasantly surprised on Saturday evening, when a number of her friends gathered at her home to celebrate her sixth birthday anniversary.

The party began at six o'clock and continued until eight o'clock. During that time, the children had a merry time playing various games. Prizes were given for the game "pinning the tail on the donkey" and they were awarded to Russell Helling, Jr., Ronald Argus, Norma Hogarth and Harven Cochran, Jr.

Before departing for their homes, the guests were invited to the dining room which was prettily decorated with green and white crepe paper streamers, draped from the dome light to the corners of the table. Favors for the girls were green tulip cups filled with candy and paper hats were given to the boys. A large birthday cake with six candles formed the centerpiece on the table. After enjoying a lot of "goodies" the children wished Alice many more happy birthdays, then left for their homes, having had a most enjoyable time. Those present were:

Marguerite Zimmerman, Gladys Cochran, Anna Mae Young, Margaret Allen, Norma Hogarth, Alice and Mary Eimer, Francis Gross, Ronald and Marvin Argus, Howard and Russell Helling, Harvey Cochran, Jr., Eugene Mount and Henry Eimer, Jr.

Robert Fowler Injured When He Falls Off Train

As he was working atop a wire train on the Pennsylvania Railroad here this morning, Robert Fowler, 43, of Dorrance street, missed his footing and fell off the side of the train to the ground.

Workmen who were with Fowler at the time took him to the Harriman Hospital, in the ambulance driven by Police Officer Betts, where he is being treated. He complained of severe pains about the back. X-ray pictures will be taken today to determine the extent of the injuries.

NATION PAUSES TODAY TO PAY TAFT TRIBUTE

Achieved What No Other American Was Ever Able To Accomplish

THOUSANDS VIEW BODY

By George R. Holmes
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Mar. 11.—The Government of which he was such an integral part for two-score years ceased its activities today and stood in salute to William Howard Taft, that genial kindly man who without fanfare and without trumpets achieved what no other American ever did—the Presidency and the Chief Justiceship.

Plugs at half-mast throughout the city fluttered in a soft spring breeze this morning as his body was borne from the modest brick home in Wyoming avenue to the Capitol. There for a short time it lay in state under the great gray dome while thousands of the plain people filed by his casket in silent tribute.

He was a popular man in Washington, was Justice Taft. His infectious chuckle, his unfeigned humor and his serene philosophy were as much a part of Washington as the Monument. Political opponents he may have had; of enemies he had none.

From the book-shelfed library where in life he spent so much time his body was borne today on a caisson to "the hill." The muffled beat of drums and the sadly beautiful strains of the dirge awakened the populace to the realization that a President was dead.

Pennsylvania avenue, that mile-long stretch that has been the stage for so much American history, echoed once more to the tramp of marching men and the staccato clatter of horses' hoofs.

It was down this same avenue that William Howard Taft rode just 21 years ago last Tuesday to become the twenty-seventh president of the United States. Upon that occasion there was a blizzard that cut off all communication and left the country in ignorance for days that he had taken the oath of office. Today the air had the caressing touch of spring, and the whole country will listen in this afternoon when his body is committed to a soldier's grave in Arlington. Such is the difference of 21 years.

The city was hardly stirring this morning when the grim caisson rolled up Wyoming avenue and paused in front of the square-built brick house. A detail of non-commissioned officers (Continued on Page Four)

FIGHT RESUMED TO SEND WOMAN TO THE CHAIR

Irene Schroeder Has Disinterested Attitude As She Sits in Courtroom

CHALLENGE TALES MEN

Alleged Slayer Garbed in The Same Sombre Garments

By Paul Glynn
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

COURTROOM, NEW CASTLE, Pa., Mar. 11.—Pennsylvania resumed its fight to send Irene Schroeder, blonde and buxom gunwoman, to the electric chair for the killing of Corporal Brady Paul, promptly at nine o'clock this morning when Lawrence County Court was called to order.

As Judge R. Lawrence Hildebrand ascended the bench, indications were that the day's session would consist of another long drawn out process of jury selection.

Irene, in the custody of the jail matron, entered the courtroom ten minutes after court convened. She was attired in precisely the same manner as yesterday, her sombre garments accentuating the steeled bloneness of her hair and the jail-pallor of her broad face.

Irene gazed disinterestedly about the crowded courtroom as she seated herself at defense counsel table. Her immobile features were tightened into their customary expression of wooden composure.

So far as weather was concerned, the second day of Irene's ordeal began inauspiciously. A cold autumnal wind howled and whined across the courtyard while a driving rain cascaded against the courtroom windows.

A somewhat eerie atmosphere was lent the courtroom, rendered dark and dank by the murky skies, as the unshaded lights brought the dun-colored walls into base relief.

Scarcely had Irene taken her seat when the calling and challenging of talesmen began.

Lavine Weinschenk, Shenango housekeeper, was submitted to a brief, searching questioning and peremptorily challenged by the defense. Alice Adams, Taylor housekeeper, admitted conscientious scruples against capital punishment and was summarily dismissed by the prosecution.

Winlat Beckwith, New Castle machinist, was excused when he pleaded illness.

Nine of the twenty peremptory challenges allotted the defense were passed when James S. Ball, clerk, of New Castle, failed to measure up to Attorney Thomas B. Dickey's idea of a tentative juror.

As selection of the jury went on, through the same interminable and monotonous grind of questions for such talesman, new prospective jurors were added to the group of those waiting to be examined. A short recess was taken and the rejected candidates were dismissed to another room.

Irene's iron composure began to desert her somewhat as the day dragged along. Her facial demeanor was unchanged but her small feet tap-tapped nervously on the floor.

Four women talesmen, examined in rapid succession soon after the start of the second hour of the trial, aroused expectations among spectators that at least one woman juror might be chosen.

Such expectations were quickly nullified, however, as the woman failed to measure up to defense and prosecution qualifications.

Geneva Lytle, Shenango housekeeper, was peremptorily challenged by the state; Angel Colnot, New Castle housewife, was peremptorily challenged by the defense.

DRAMATIC PRESENTATION WILL PLEASE FATHERS

Female Members of H. S. Faculty Will Take Part in Sketch

MEETING ON THURSDAY

Another good time is promised the members of the Bristol Fathers' Association at the regular monthly meeting to be held in the high school auditorium on Thursday evening, March 13th. A dramatic entertainment is to be furnished by the female members of the high school faculty. The nature of the entertainment is being kept a profound secret, and all efforts to obtain any information about it have proven unsuccessful.

A good time was enjoyed by all who were present at the meeting last month and many of the new members evidenced their satisfaction by saying that from a monetary standpoint they had received enough pleasure and enjoyment from their attendance at this one meeting, to compensate them for a whole year's dues.

At the meeting to be held on Thursday evening the committees which are contesting in the drive for membership will make their reports. It has been stated that as a result of the drive over one hundred new names will be added to the roll of membership. The Program Committee is already working on the entertainment for the April meeting. This committee, in an effort to increase the interest in the meetings, is striving to provide the kind of entertainment which men enjoy. Accordingly they have arranged for several scientific boxing bouts, to be staged at the April meeting. Only members will be admitted to the meeting, and those on the outside who desire to attend must have their application cards and the cash for payment of a year's dues, in the hands of the Secretary before that time.

The meeting on this Thursday evening is scheduled to begin at 7:30 sharp and the dramatic entertainment will start at 8 o'clock.

PUBLIC SAFETY SUP'T IS TO GO INTO EVERY BUILDING IN BRISTOL

Will Examine Property For Fire Hazards and Obstructions to Firemen

ASKED TO CO-OPERATE

Notices to Be Served Where Dangers Are Found
To Exist

Rigid inspection of business places and dwellings so as to eliminate as far as possible fire hazards was started here today. The inspection got under way in the commercial district first and will gradually extend to all sections of the borough.

Superintendent of Public Safety James L. McGee and one of the borough firemen working as an assistant are doing the work.

A prescribed blank form is made out for each property visited and on it there is reported the necessary data. If fire hazards are found the tenant is given notice and urged to abate it at once. After a sufficient interval has elapsed a reinspection is made to see if the law has been complied with.

Borough Council, last night, took the necessary action to give Superintendent McGee full authority to proceed with the inspection and an ordinance was enacted which formally designated the building inspector as the individual to make the inspection.

The ordinance provides that whenever the inspector finds in any building or upon any premises or other place, combustible or explosive matter or dangerous accumulation of rubbish or unnecessary accumulation of waste paper, boxes, shavings, or any other highly inflammable materials especially liable to fire, and which is so situated as to endanger property, or shall find obstructions to or on fire escapes, stairs, passageways, doors or windows, liable to interfere with the operations of the fire department, or egress of occupants, in case of fire, he shall order the same to be removed or remedied, and such order shall forthwith be complied with by the owner or occupants of such premises or buildings, subject to appeal within 24 hours to the Burgess, who shall within 10 days review such order and file his decision thereon, and unless the order is revoked or modified it shall remain in full force and be obeyed by such owner or occupants.

The inspection is being made in a thorough manner and detailed records are to be kept of every property so inspected.

LAUGHING AT DANGER

That man is adventuresome, daring and courageous being witness him as he runs the gamut of daily life. It is a trait that comes to him naturally instinctively. He needs no provocation to urge him to deeds of daring nor can he be deterred by the cautious fears of the timid members of the species.

It is known that all animals experience the sensation of fear and that all fear is based on a premonition of bodily harm or death, but, although this sensation is strongest in man, man is most prone to court it.

In spite of thousands of fatalities annually men, women and children daily climb perilous crags, tempt the deeps in flimsy craft, take to the air, participate in dangerous sports, speed in automobiles and otherwise disport themselves as though they would laugh at death.

We know that man loves life and fears death. We also know that he momentarily tosses the dice with the grim reaper and thinks nothing of the experience. The only explanation for this seeming paradox is the fact that the spark of eternal hope is stronger in the human mind than either his fear of death or his love of the risk that thrills. Sometimes our hope leads us into disastrous over-confidence. A little caution is good for all men.

REASONS

This is the age of reason. Everything nowadays has a sort of scientific background. All human action, if it is worth while, is supposed to be taken after careful and prayerful consideration.

If a preacher gets a new call, or a business or professional man is offered a new position, or a politician is invited to take an appointive office, each begs leave to retire to decide the question according to the dictates of his conscience. If the public were permitted to examine the interior mechanism of the minds of these gentlemen, it would likely discover that a decision was arrived at prior to or contemporaneous with the offer. Careful and prayerful consideration usually means thinking up reasons so as to appear neither hasty nor haphazard. In other words, most people decide things first and think up afterward their reasons for deciding that way, though they may be perfectly sincere in imagining the reverse.

In this modern age of efficiency "hunches" do not go. Nor does sentiment justify. A Democrat or a Republican hesitates to explain his politics on the ground that his father and grandfather belonged to the same party before him. He tries to justify it on principle with distressing results. Most people are not more successful in attempting to explain why they belong to a certain religious denomination. They blush to attribute these affiliations to habit, tradition, heredity, or even to simple faith. So it is with the rest of one's predilections. The system is supposed to make for efficiency. Yet it is conceivable that the human dynamo would hum faster if it did not have to stop so often to consider why and wherefore.

If it is true that 1,500,000 cars were junked last year, why is it that we see about 1,400,000 of the junked ones still running?

"GENERAL CRACK"

by GEORGE PREEDY

Copyright 1928 by Dodd Mead & Co., Inc.
The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore, is based on this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Princess Eleanora is the decisive woman in the game of European diplomacy, to decide whether King Leopold shall be emperor or not. Both he and General Crack are bent on winning her hand in marriage. Leopold needs Crack, and Crack needs Eleanora. Eleanora has been sheltered from the world. Ferdinand Gabor, an unscrupulous rascal dismissed by Crack, overtakes her in the woods, and forces his unbecoming attentions on the girl. Crack arrives.

"Monsieur was trying to give them to me," she whispered.

"Pick them up!" Christian commanded Gabor. The Transylvanian hesitated, for Christian spoke as if he were ordering a cur to a kennel, but his habit of obedience was too strong; he stooped easily, and negligently handed the lilies to the other man, remarking slyly:

"Forgive me, Highness, I had not understood that my poor gallantries were unwelcome."

One step brought Christian close to him, one second sufficed for him to dash the wet lily bells into his face.

"Begone! Immediately! If I see you again I will have you thrashed!"

Then he recovered his composure instantly and turned his back, with unutterable contempt, on Gabor. The Transylvanian had staggered.

They were planning his marriage.

into the hornbeam hedge; the heavy tattered bezel of Christian's ring had cut his lip and blood mingled with water trickled down to his spruce uniform; he pulled out his handkerchief and pressed it to his twisted mouth; his soul quivered one agony of hate, but he dared risk no second insult; he slipped swiftly away through the tall hedges.

Christian gazed sternly at Eleanora; he was most bitterly amazed and annoyed by this scene, most of all by his own faint of rage.

"Why were you alone?" he frowned.

Eleanora was prepared for reproach; she knew that an indiscretion on her part had led to all this unpleasantness; it had been wrong for her to slip away like that—

"If her father was to know!"

She wrung her hands in silence and with terrified eyes pleaded for pity.

"Gabor, of all men!" mused Christian in deep rage; it was incredible. "Did he follow you?"

"I don't know," whispered Eleanora, looking ready to sink on her knees before this stern scrutiny. "I met him in the woods, Monsieur—only a little way in the woods—if you would not tell my father—"

"It is no longer your father's business, but mine," he replied curtly, and set his heel on the lilies Gabor had profaned. "Come, I have been asked to bring you to the Château—I have looked for you—some while—in vain."

Eleanora wished to say something to placate him, but knew of nothing; she thought him even more forbidding than her father; how horrible his dark face had been in that flash of time when he had struck the other man—a grinning mask of fury!

"This is the first time that we have been alone together," he remarked moodily and with an accent of deep disappointment that she could not understand. "An ill omen! Mademoiselle, he added sharply, 'will you come to the house?'"

As Christian and Eleanora went into the Château, Gabor, still wiping his bleeding lip, was staring at them from behind the statue of Silenus, against the flood plumb of which he leant his trembling body.

Ferdinand Gabor had done with Christian, as completely as Christian had done with him. A long-contained, an envious and jealous hatred had now broken into complete and utter loathing and detestation as he watched the elegant and rigid figure of General Crack,

An unfinished story

You often read in the paper after a fire that "the loss was fully covered by insurance." This means that the value of the burned property was fully protected.

But the story is not finished until life has been resumed in the restored home... or business is being carried on in a rebuilt factory. An agent who completely protects his clients knows there is a long and costly period between the time of paying for a loss and the complete restoration of the property. This period should be shortened as much as possible.

This agency will not leave your insurance story unfinished. We will point out to you all the modern methods of providing an income to replace the interrupted use of your property after a fire.

Ask us today to show you how little extra it costs to have complete protection.

Every Building in Pennsylvania

Property owners—individually and collectively—create the conditions which determine the cost of their fire insurance.

To establish Fire Insurance Rates for the various properties in your state in keeping with their individual conditions requires careful measurement and estimate of the fire hazards in practically every commercial building in Pennsylvania.

Inspection and Rating Bureaus

Consider the task of surveying practically every commercial building in this state—with details of construction, occupancy, protection and exposure kept on file.

Even then you have an incomplete idea of the inspection and rating services involved in establishing fire insurance rates.

This is the job done by the Underwriters' Association of the Middle Department, Philadelphia Board of Fire Underwriters (Philadelphia only), Philadelphia Suburban Underwriters' Association, and the Board of Fire Underwriters of Allegheny County (Pittsburgh and vicinity) with their extensive staffs of trained engineers.

Engineering Standards and Laboratory Tests

Engineering standards published by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and researches and tests of the Underwriters' Laboratories pertaining to the strength and usefulness of materials and devices are available to these rating organizations.

Should an owner desire to improve his property where standard conditions do not already prevail, information showing him how to do it will be supplied free of charge directly through his insurance agent or broker. Constructive work of this character results in reducing hazards.

A Free Service

The above rating organizations are constantly advising property owners and communities as to specifications for new buildings or changes in old ones—the installation of fire protective devices—community fire prevention programs—and all fire safety activities. All of this service is free.

Public use of these and other measures of conservation afforded by Stock Fire Insurance is a principal factor in the constant decline in the average fire insurance rate in this country for more than twenty years.

"KONJOLA ONLY MEDICINE THAT DID ANY GOOD"

New Medicine Quickly Banishes Ills for Man—Eagerly Praises Its Powers

L. A. GUE-MANN

"Konjola is the only medicine that did me any good," said Mr. L. A. Gue-mann, 209 West Norwegan street, Pottsville. "I suffered for years with indigestion and kidney troubles. I floated so terribly after meals that my heart was affected and palpitated until I became weak. A dull sickening pain ran through my back almost constantly and frequent bladder actions so disturbed my sleep that I became nervous and rundown."

"My friends, after much urging, prevailed upon me to try Konjola. What a pleasant surprise awaited me! My bowels began to function and then my kidneys became normal. Today I suffer no back pains and bladder actions are natural and without discomfort. My stomach cleared up and now the heartiest foods are digested without difficulty. I no longer bloat and my heart is in excellent condition. I am in excellent health for the first time in years."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

"WATCH THE PHILLIES"
IS WINTER HAVEN CRY

By James L. Kilgallen

I. N. S. Sports Writer

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., Mar. 10.—
"Watch the Phillies!"

This is the battle cry in Winter Haven where the heavy hitting and aggressive Philadelphia National League ball club is in spring training. From the manager, Bart Shotton, down to the greenest rookie the whole team exudes confidence and gives the impression of power.

"Isn't that a good looking ball club," asked Manager Shotton today as he watched his players prance around the field in the hot sun.

Shotton has a great bunch of sluggers on his club. There is Lefty O'Doul, Chuck Klein, Outfielder W. Trip Sigman, second baseman Fresno Thompson and Arthur Whitney.

"I look for a hard fight in the National League this year with the Phillies in the thick of it," said Shotton. "Chicago, of course, will be hard to beat. So will Pittsburgh and St. Louis. New York will be good, no doubt, and I believe Brooklyn and Cincinnati are greatly improved ball clubs. It should be a ding dong race."

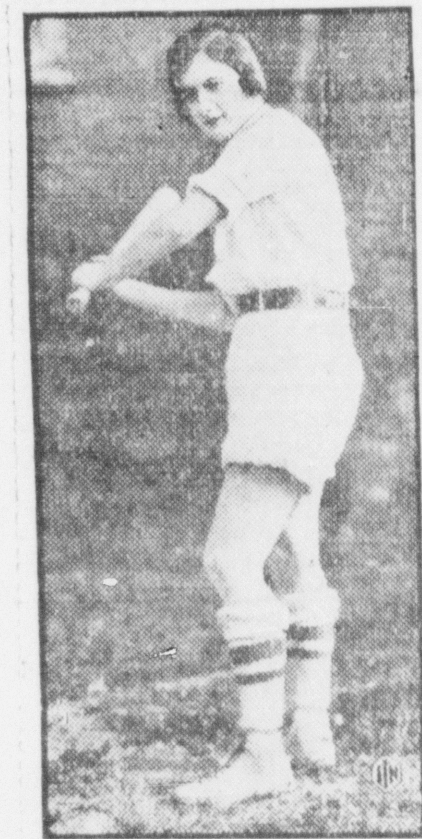

"Some sluggers!" commented Shotton. "I will be greatly disappointed if we do not be right up there this year. We have the power to make runs, that's a cinch."

"Pitching has been our weak spot. And yet we have some mighty fine pitchers in Willoughby, Sweetland, Bengie, Speece, Collins and Alexander, to say nothing of some fine looking youngsters. Those I have named should be good starting pitchers. I expect Alexander to win at least ten games. I have put 'Alex' in charge of the pitchers. If he can't help them no one can."

"I am looking over five catchers. Virgil Davis has the inside track. He caught half the games last year. I am not set on the others."

"The infield will be made up of Hurst at first, Thompson second, Whitney third and Thevenow short. Friberg, who hit .301, will be mighty handy for utility work in the infield."

"The outfield will be made up of Shotton praised the work of Whitney whom he thinks is one of the greatest third basemen in the game. Whitney drove in more than 400 runs last season.

"I look for a hard fight in the National League this year with the Phillies in the thick of it," said Shotton. "Chicago, of course, will be hard to beat. So will Pittsburgh and St. Louis. New York will be good, no doubt, and I believe Brooklyn and Cincinnati are greatly improved ball clubs. It should be a ding dong race."

Council Objects To Ordinance Violation

who violate the ordinance remove the signs but later this was reconsidered and it was decided that a warning should be issued.

According to the statements of the councilmen, out-of-town concerns come into Bristol and hang illuminated and non-illuminated signs across the pavements without having consulted the authorities. There is a borough ordinance regulating the erection of signs and the ordinance specifies the size, height and other details connected therewith.

It is also brought out that the sign erectors are not so much at fault as the owners of the properties permitting the erection on their premises.

It has occurred a number of times recently that signs have been placed and when discovered by the police or other borough authorities and checked it was found that no permits had been granted. Then the owners were brought to time and compelled to procure the necessary permit. This practice is likely to halt and it is believed that hereafter the penalty of the ordinance will be imposed upon those who do not first obtain the permit.

Permits were requested last night for signs at the following places:

301 Walnut street, Dorrance and Wood streets, L. T. Ward; 200 Mill street; Pistilli, Jefferson avenue and Mansion street, and Robert C. Weik. Referred to Street and Highway Committee with power to act.

An agreement was authorized between Raymond W. Wright and Bristol Borough permitting the former to maintain a surface water drain over the premises of the latter.

William J. Stroble asked permission to place two gasoline pumps and the necessary underground equipment in front of the premises which he occupies at Market and Cedar streets. Referred to Street & Highway Committee with power to act.

Police reported 27 arrests during the month and the following disposition of the cases:

Fined, 8; held for court, 5; discharged, 6; committed, 6; turned over to Philadelphia authorities, 1; turned over to N. J. State Hospital for Insane, 1.

Communication was received from Bristol Exchange Club protesting against the indiscriminate erection of billboards within the borough. Referred to Borough Attorney.

Councilmen present were: Wagner, Williams, Winter, Headley, Wagner, Williams, Winter, Headley, Vandegrift, Barrett, Duffy, Fallon, Fry, Winslow, Spezzano, Johns, Zebley, Satterthwaite.

Plumbers bonds of Frank Murphy with Arthur P. Brady as surety and of Owen F. Evans with Walter Buchler as surety were both approved.

Nation Pauses Today
To Pay Taft Tribute

from the army, navy and marine corps bore the casket from the home and placed it on the flag-draped artillery rack.

Drawn by six horses it moved quickly off, followed by the army and navy bands, and a military and naval escort that included all branches of the service. There was a battalion of infantry, a battalion of field artillery, a battalion of marines and a company of blue-jackets, commanded by a major general, Fred W. Sladen, former commandant at West Point.

The cortege moved out of the quiet street and into Connecticut avenue, down to Dupont Circle, and thence through Massachusetts avenue to Sixteenth and H streets, within sight of the White House; circled the Treasury and down Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol. Despite the early hour there were crowds along the curbs, bare-headed and reverential.

At the Capitol, the body bearers bore the coffin from the plaza up the great stone steps into the rotunda and deposited it on the same catafalque that supported the bodies of Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and Harding.

Soon thereafter the doors were thrown wide and past the bier filed the first of thousands. Many of them had stood in line since the dawning hours in order to pass quickly through and steal a final look at a great American figure.

Only a few hours were allotted to Capitol ceremonies—too few for the thousands who wished to pay their last respects to the jovial man who had so many friends.

At noon the doors were scheduled to close, and the body taken again through Pennsylvania avenue and Sixteenth street to the church where for a quarter of a century Justice Taft worshipped his God.

A simple service at the church, devoid of eulogy, and an even more simple service at the grave in Arlington this afternoon marks the passing of a notable figure.

CARD PARTY

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Harri-man Hospital held a card party in the Auxiliary rooms on Radcliffe street, last evening. The evening was spent playing pinocle and "500" and prizes were given to the winners. Mrs. Winifred Armstrong was high in "500" and she selected a bridge lamp, while Miss Hilda Pope, having high score in pinocle, chose a plant. After the cards were over, refreshments of sandwiches and coffee were sold, and those attending the party enjoyed the evening.

Mrs. Thomas Longstreet
Dies; Lifelong Resident

Death this morning claimed a very well known and life long resident of Bristol when Mrs. Mary K. Longstreet, wife of Thomas Longstreet, died at Dr. J. F. Wagner's Hospital at 5:30 o'clock.

The deceased was a native of Bristol having been born here on Mill street in the property adjoining the Bell Telephone Exchange. She was the daughter of the late Abner Martin.

Mrs. Longstreet was stricken last Tuesday and while at first her illness was not considered serious she failed to show any improvement. It was her first illness for five years. She was 62 years of age.

A husband and one son, Thomas, Jr., survive.

Firemen Do Good Work
At Cemetery Blaze

Fire last night for a time threatened to destroy the pump house at the Bristol cemetery. The frame structure was all ablaze both inside and out when the Consolidated Firemen reached the scene. The fire had been started, it is believed, by defective wiring.

The firemen made their way through the flames to the interior of the building and ran a suction line of hose down into the well beneath the structure. The booster pump was then brought into play and pumped water from the well to extinguish the blazing structure above it.

The loss is estimated at about $500.
